

Dearest

I am writing to you because a little robin told me that you've had a few worries about whether I'll still be able to deliver some presents this year. I just wanted to let you know that there isn't anything for you to worry about because the Elves and I have thought of everything!

Elf Jingles has spoken to all of the world leaders and made sure that I have special permission to travel around the world on Christmas Eve.

Elf Tinker has been doing what he does best and tinkering with my Sleigh, which is now self-sanitising! This means that I'll easily be able to travel from one roof to another, keeping squeaky clean along the way.

Don't worry about the reindeer or I either. Mrs. Claus has made the most festive candy cane masks for us to wear when we're delivering the presents (although I have had to trim my beard a little to make sure that mine fits properly). They also magically let mince pies and treats through, she really does think of everything!

These masks along with plenty of hand washing and social distancing will help to keep us all safe this Christmas and remember that it's important for you to do your part as well to help us along our way.

I hope that this will put your mind at ease and that you and your loved ones will have a very Merry Christmas!

Lots of love,

Santa Claus
